BOYCOTT APARTHEID

This message is coming loud and clear from black South Africans and Namibians. They are appealing to people all over the world to boycott the products of Apartheid.

Apartheid means power, privilege and wealth for the white minority. It means poverty, humiliation and exploitation for the black majority. Above all it means that the black majority are denied all fundamental political and human rights in their own country.

Our government tells us that the consumer must decide. We're the consumers. So are people we know. Sanctions start with us.

BUYING SOUTH AFRICAN GOODS: ARE WE TAKING THE FOOD FROM THEIR MOUTHS?

Every hour, 3 to 5 black South African children die as a result of malnutrition and preventable disease. Every week, tons of South African fruit come into Britain, to fill the supermarkets and stalls with Cape apples and grapes, Outspan oranges and grapefruit. Also avocados, canned and dried fruit, wines and spirits.

Every decision we make not to buy South African products makes it harder to keep the Apartheid system going. It increases the pressure to make food available inside the country at a cost within the reach of those who so desperately need it. And it helps by denying the apartheid economy crucial foreign exchange earnings.
